The 21st CEA (UK) and 2nd CEA (Europe) Annual Conference

Global Economic Recovery: The Role of China and Other Emerging Economies

Co-organised by
Oxford Department of International Development
Oxford University China Centre
Department of Economics
University of Oxford

12-13 July 2010
University of Oxford, UK

In the new global age, a most serious global economic crisis calls for global partnership and global solutions. As fast-rising economic forces, China and the other emerging economies are expected to play a crucial role in the global battle against the current economic crisis, working as part of a global partnership which aims at leading the world towards economic recovery. The main theme of the 2010 CEA (Europe/UK) annual conference will be the impact of the global economic crisis on China and other emerging economies, the response of these countries at national, regional and firm levels, and their role in the global battle for economic recovery and prosperity. Theoretical and empirical studies, as well as comparative studies of China and other E8 economies, are all welcomed. Contributions focusing on the following issues would be of particular interest:

- The impact of global economic crisis on China and other emerging economies
- The role of China and other emerging economies in global economic recovery
- Globalisation and International Integration
- Economic Growth, Income Distribution and Poverty
- Public policy, health and development
- Natural Environment and Sustainable Development
- Trade and Foreign Direct Investment
- Rural Development and Land Reform
- Urbanisation and Migration
- Innovation, Technology and Development
- Financial Sector Reform and Foreign Exchange Policy
- Capital Market and Corporate Governance
- Labour Market Reform and Human Resource Management

Distinguished keynote speakers include

Her Excellency, Mme FU Ying, Ambassador of China to the UK

Robert Mundell (Nobel Laureate, Columbia University)

Adrian Wood (Oxford University)

Jeffrey Sachs (Columbia University, TBC)

Yongding Yu (Director of IWE, Chinese Academy of Social Science)

Lord Desai (London School of Economics)

Rongping Mu (Director of IPM, Chinese Academy of Science)

Albert Park (Oxford University)

Selected conference papers will be published in the Journal of Chinese Economic and Business Studies and an edited book. Further features of the conference include:

- PhD colloquium: experienced supervisors will chair and comment on students' papers
- Prizes will be awarded for best papers submitted and presented by PhD students
- Information Corner on job opportunities
- Selected papers at the Oxford conference will be invited to attend the parallel conference at Peking University in China.

You are invited to submit an abstract of 300-500 words by 15th February 2010 either through online submission (www.ceauk.org.uk) or email to cea2010oxford@yahoo.com. You will be informed by 15th March 2010 whether your paper will be accepted. Subsequently you will be expected to provide the full paper by 15th June 2010.

The CEA (UK) was launched in 1988 and has since become one of the leading organisations in Europe promoting research on China. Its past annual conferences have attracted wide-ranging attention from academic institutions, government organisations, banks and industries, alongside the media in the UK and China. Prominent speakers have included ministers from the Chinese and British governments, the Chinese ambassadors, and eminent academic figures of international repute including Nobel laureates of economic sciences. Papers from these conferences have been published in leading economics and business journals, edited books and the CEA (UK)'s official journal, the Journal of Chinese Economic and Business Studies, published by Taylor & Francis.

CEA (Europe) was established in 2009 as a major expansion of CEA (UK). It is a non-profit and independent legal entity. The main objective of the CEA (Europe) is to promote scholarly exchanges and encourage academic leadership on Chinese economic and business studies in Europe.
